Georgia hoops coach sees Mizzou enhancing SEC

By Mike DeArmond - Posted on 17 November 2011

Georgia and basketball coach Mark Fox may or may not play future Southeastern Conference newest member Missouri in next week's Progressive CBE Classic in Kansas City.

But Fox – during a coaches media teleconference on Thursday – contended Missouri will bring a strong presence athletically and academically in departing the Big 12.

"I grew up in Kansas and coached in the Big Eight when it became the Big 12," Fox said, "and I think I have a good understanding of what Missouri will bring certainly to our league.

"Missouri has a great basketball tradition.

"I grew up watch Coach (Norm) Stewart's basketball teams play.

"Certainly the success of many of its programs will enhance our league."

Missouri plays Notre Dame and California plays Georgia in the CBE Classic on Monday night in Kansas City's Sprint Center. The first night winners meet on Tuesday night in the title game following a consolation game between those teams that lost on Monday.
